PG&E: we may escape unscathed

The Valley will have no power "brownouts" this summer, according to one Pacific Gas and Electric Co. official who told The Times he was "cautiously optimistic" the area would not experience a blackout either.

"Hopefully the hottest part of the year is over," said PG&E information officer John Rodriguez, expressing confidence his company "will not have to go to interruption" because of overloads.

PG&E contingency plans would never allow a brownout to actually happen here, he said. Brownouts occur when voltage is reduced, causing lights to dim and appliances to operate slower.

That contingency plan would avert a low voltage situation like the one started in New York July 13, said the PG&E official. "We would turn off parts of the system rather than go to low voltage because demand could continue to grow even though voltage is reduced."

He outlined several phases PG&E would use, including a plea through the media for people to voluntarily conserve energy during the peak hours of noon to 6 p.m.

If that first call for a reduction went unheeded, he said, PG&E would be forced to cut the juice to certain industries in the Bay Area that have "curtailment contracts" with the power company. The total represents several million kilowatts.

The last step would be mandatory service interruptions, more commonly known as rolling blackouts.

"Portions of Pleasanton, Dublin and Livermore would find circuits turned off for 2-4 hours at a time," said Rodriguez, and would involve several thousand customers at a time — including businesses and residences.

PG&E is now in the process of outlining a method to notify people if the mandatory phase ever becomes necessary. Dividing each area into large "blocks," the company envisions assigning each block a number that would be printed on the customer's bill each month. Going into mandatory blackouts would involve radio and television public service messages.

Two variables affect the situation — weather and equipment.

When it is hot, Valley homeowners put on their air conditioners, which constitute the highest appliance load, according to the PG&E spokesman. Area farmers, battling a drought situation, start the water pumps that create a "tremendous load."

Mechanical breakdowns could also occur at the nearby power plant in Pittsburg, said Rodriguez. That station has seven generating units, ranging from 350,000 to 750,000 kilowatts.

Such breakdowns could include a bad bearing or cooling system breakdown.

Rodriguez said the PG&E system, which usually relies on hydroelectric power for 30-40 per cent of its capacity, has been reduced to 6-10 per cent from that power source.

"To offset that we are buying more power from Southern California and other sources," he added, noting that none of the local power is coming from the northwest which is also experiencing a severe drought.

Food stamp outlet found, angry political aftermath

Food stamps will be distributed at post offices in Livermore and Pleasanton when Valley Bank drops its distribution service, The Times learned yesterday.

The post office agreement apparently comes too late to keep the lid on a behind-the-scenes political controversy involving city council and the Livermore Housing Authority, however.

Frank Perez, a county contract administrator, yesterday confirmed that the postal service had agreed to take over distribution of food stamps in the Valley.

Valley Bank told the county it would no longer handle distribution after Aug. 31. Perez said the post office had asked the bank to continue serving food stamp customers for another 15-30 days so preparations could be made for a smooth transition. A bank spokesman yesterday refused comment on whether the service would be extended.

The Livermore Housing Authority and assistants to Rep. Pete Stark (D-Oakland) had virtually run out of possible food stamp vendor candidates. No other banks or savings and loans would accept handling the service, and a motion by an LHA member Wednesday night to move the distributorship to Leahy Square died for lack of a second.

LHA Commissioner David Tritsch touched off a storm of controversy at that meeting when he said a city councilman had threatened to disband the commission, and reappoint all members except Tritsch and possibly one other director. (Two seats currently remain unoccupied on the seven-member board).

Tritsch said yesterday the threat was delivered to him by an unnamed third party. Fellow Commissioner Jerry Richards confirmed the threat at Wednesday night's meeting.

Due to past discontent with the LHA, Tritsch said, city council would vote 4-1 to disband the commission if the food stamp issue was not solved rapidly.

He said he didn't know which councilman made the initial threat. Richards said Wednesday it came from a "ranking" councilman.

"The Livermore City Council is heavy-handed sometimes," Tritsch said yesterday, using "threats" and "intimidation" to push issues its way. He said it "smacks of right-wing politics."

AC Transit dry run tested in Livermore

LIVERMORE — A 25 passenger AC Transit bus rolled down the streets of this city yesterday, portending the coming of a four-route bus system next spring.

It was a dry run, but the few passengers on board were comparing notes to take back to meetings of the city council, transportation committee, chamber of commerce and city staff.

Seated behind the driver, Councilman John Staley called the heavy duty small bus a "very nice bus, but I don't know if this is the one we will be using for our system."

AC bus driver Vernon Shinkle of Fremont first took the bus to the Fire Department headquarters on East Avenue, then to Lawrence Livermore Laboratory for people in those areas to inspect the vehicle.

Where eagles scare?

Pleasanton ridgeland property owner Carl Nipper sat by in the Alameda County Board of Supervisors chambers yesterday while numerous spokesmen detailed opposition to his proposed housing development.

In public hearings before the board on Nipper's "Rancho Sunol Estates," critics claimed that housing construction on the hilltops near Sunol would cause erosion, chase away eagles and vultures, and place a burden on taxpayers.

One speaker proposed a limited 16-unit development on Nipper's holdings. An Another urged approval of his plans, complaining that as a farmer, Nipper pays taxes in various special assessment districts, but now, when he can use those services for urban development, he's being shut out.

Paul Hecht, president of Rancho Sunol Estates, simply urged supervisors to maintain a residential designation on Nipper's hilltop to assure construction of the homes.

Campaign finance lists trickle in Three out of seven candidates running to fill two directors positions being vacated on the Valley Community Services District board met the first filing deadline requiring a campaign financial expenditure and contribution report.

The deadline was yesterday for Alameda and Contra Costa counties, according to Registrar of Voter office officials in both counties. The election is scheduled for Sept. 6.

Robert I. Brown and Joseph Covello of San Ramon filed in Contra Costa County. Lila Euler of Dublin filed in Alameda County.

All three submitted short forms which indicate expenditures and/or contributions received have not exceeded $200, county officials said. Other forms are available for other amounts.

Out-patient figures at VMH show climb

LIVERMORE — Valley Memorial Hospital board of directors announced last night a "rather significant" increase in out-patient registration at the facility.

Assistant Administrator Larry Freeman said out-patient registration for 1976-77 was 81,700 persons — a jump of 9,200 patients over last year.

The board's chairman, Joseph Sladky, noted that there had been a "dramatic increase in cost-per-patient."

According to the administrator's office, revenue at Valley Memorial for 1976-77 peaked at $9,030,033 surpassing expenses by some $500,000.

Revenue was increased over the previous year $1,200.

Freeman said occupancy at the hospital last month was 69 per cent of capacity while occupancy for medical-surgical reasons climbed to 81 per cent.

Arthur Sherman addressed the board on the development of a foundation at Valley Memorial Hospital.

Sherman, who has been in the foundation business for 25 years, said that all hospitals are going to the foundation system which would have its own board as an independent non-profit organization.

He said, "it can be as general or specific in purpose as you wish."

According to Sherman, the foundation concept has proved "absolutely essential" for survival of a hospital.

"The key to success in a foundation," he said, "is to have a 25-member board of trustees from all walks of life and committees to develop a vast membership."

Hospital directors accepted the resignation of board member Emily Schwartz and announced that her job was at large.

Recruiting for an SR experiment

Only 10 people have applied for one of seven positions on the experimental San Ramon Valley planning commission to begin a two-year trial run this fall.

Contra Costa County Supervisor Eric Hasseltine, Danville, has issued a call for anyone living in the unincorporated territory covered by the SRV general plan with interests in planning to apply care of Hasseltine, 45 Civic Ave., Pittsburg, Ca., 94565.

The trial planning commission will replace the Contra Costa County planning commission in nearly all planning matters pertaining to San Ramon.

The supervisors will select members of the SRV commission. No salary is offered for the service.

Andrew Young of the county planning commission, has been given one of the seven spots on the board.

Ridgeland future sparks hearing interest

OAKLAND — Sunol took over the spotlight in the Alameda County Board of Supervisors public hearing on the proposed revisions in the Valley general plan yesterday.

There was a good turnout from the Valley in the audience, some expecting a vote on the plan and the fate of Harlan Geldermann's New Town proposal, but the series will resume again in Oakland at 2 p.m. Sept. 1.

Carl Nipper's proposed 95 units for the Sunol Ridge was the big topic yesterday.

Paul Hecht, president of Rancho Sunol Estates, the name for Nipper's development, made the shortest speech of the morning, simply urging that the supervisors keep a residential designation on the ridge top so the estates can be built, as recommended and approved by the county planning commission.

Margaret Tracy of Preserve Area Ridgelands Committee, said that Nipper should be allowed up to 16 units, the maximum allowed him in an agricultural zone, but his land should not be designated for residential use. Other agricultural owners are using the Williamson Act to continue agricultural operations with a tax break and Nipper could, too, said Tracy.

Lynn Bowers of Sunol and Joyce LeClaire, council member in Pleasanton, urged blocking Nipper's proposal. They felt that taxpayers would bear the brunt of providing more urban services in the area. LeClaire was especially concerned about Pleasanton's 15 to 20 minute fire department response to the area in a mutual aid agreement with the county. She noted that Castlewood, which is closer to Pleasanton, has a fire protection agreement with the city and it doesn't pay for itself.

Dagmar Fulton of Pleasanton, long active in Valley agricultural organizations, said that farmers all around the Valley have been paying taxes for many years into flood control districts and in some cases special assessment districts for sewers. Now some people want them to be denied the opportunity to use those services for urban development, she said.

She attributed Kilkare Woods opposition to Nipper to selfish motives. Residents think the 95 units would "spoil Sunol," but "Sunol needs a little spoiling — many of those buildings are old and should be condemned," said Fulton.

Bowers claimed that Nipper's development would bring more erosion to the ridge which would impact directly on Kilkare Road properties. He also felt it might scare Golden Eagles away and vultures which nest in the area.

If the supervisors approved the package sewage treatment plant requested by Nipper, it would put the county "in the sewage business," said Bowers.

After testimony was finished on the Sunol aspects of the plan, Supervisor Joseph Bort observed that he'd be inclined to leave the ridgetop as residential, but only allow low density development because of problems of access to public services.

SP opposes ag zoning for winery

OAKLAND — Southern Pacific's land division doesn't like Alameda County's suggestion to put the 300 acre Stoney Ridge Winery into an agricultural general plan designation, one of its officials said yesterday.

The railroad bought the old Ruby Hills Winery in 1973 and plans to put homes on it eventually, but right now is leasing it out to Stony Ridge Winery.

Southern Pacific bought the land with the intention of putting large home estates on it, said Lloyd Norton, manager of agricultural operations for S.P. Taxes on the land run $36,000 a year and gross income is $50,000 a year. Norton said that means a loss for S.P., though he didn't explain the details.

Right now the general plan designation is low density residential development and it ought to remain, said Norton.

Supervisor Valerie Raymond said that in view of the sewer ban in Pleasanton and the 2 per cent growth rate announced for the city over the next 20 years, it's unrealistic to expect any residential development on the S.P. land for the next 20 years.

Norton responded that "hopefully those problems will be solved." Raymond replied that from the county perspective there are plenty of other residential areas in the Valley that could be developed instead.

Norton insisted the land "is not agricultural property — it doesn't pay expenses."

Raymond said that if the land were put into the Williamson Act, which gives farmers a reduction in taxes for agricultural land, then it would pay for S.P.

County supervisors

Collier Canyon Rd. plan delayed

OAKLAND — Charles Keiser was wished a long life by Supervisor Charles Santana after he made his pitch for residential development on his 168 acres on Collier Canyon Road yesterday.

Keiser, who appears to be in his 40's, spoke at the supervisors' public hearing on the amendments to the Valley general plan. He acquired the land in the early 1960's with two other partners, one a widow. Since then, the investment group has become two widows and himself and his wife and he is beginning to feel, after long frustration about development in the Valley, that the group may soon include three widows.

"Hang in there," Santana told him.

There were no conclusions by supervisors about what to do concerning Keiser's property, which is used for agriculture, but the panel will take up the proposed amendments to the general plan again Sept. 1.

Supervisors also heard attorneys for Conrad Modt argue that their client deserves residential devlopment on his several hundred acres near I-580 between Livermore and Pleasanton.

Modt has paid $70,000 to VCSD for a big sewer line and the total commitment will be at least $110,000. Modt didn't want to get into that sewer assessment district, said the attorneys.

In addition, the interest on the money would amount to as much as $150,000 over 30 years, they said.

Bort said that there are three problems with the Modt property: it is too far from other urban development, it is near the airport and its concommitant noise and other problems, and even if it got residential designation, where would it be placed on the priority list in the next 20 years, which is the range of the general plan amendments under consideration.

Supervisors also heard former pig farmer John Migliore announce that he might consummate a contract for agricultural uses of his Las Positas Valley property. If it happens, he will withdraw his request to designate the land for rural residential uses, he said.

Dry run bus tour

The $60,000 diesel bus is being suggested for the city's proposed system, envisioned by many as a 25 cent ride system. By comparison, the larger BART commuter buses cost $110,000.

Jerry Jones and Barbara Shawn of the city transportation committee got into a discussion with AC supervisor Walt Howe, who squatted in the aisle between them as he talked. Wondering whether the city's future bus system would be a dial-a-ride type or fixed routes, Shawn told The Times her committee had not yet made a specific recommendation to city council.

"We will talk about that at the next meeting," she said, "but we will probably go with fixed routes."

She noted Union City's fixed routes for "The flea" bus, which does not have specific stops and takes passengers who flag down the vehicle. That system uses two way radio communications between buses to help passengers make their connections to other buses.

Councilman Dale Turner, who earlier this year inspected the Union City small bus system, sat in the bus and commented, "This should do the job."

AC Transit Wednesday included six potentially Livermore bound buses in its plans to apply for federal funding of its $17 million capital improvement program. The six buses, radio equipment, passenger shelters and $10,000 wheel chair lifts would cost $764,400. AC has set Sept. 28 for a public hearing on the application.

VCSD candidate statements

Registrar of Voters offices had not received reports from Kathie Waterson and Harry M. Short of Dublin, and Steve Larson and Paul Schissler from San Ramon.

Nominees are allowed to file in either county, according to spokesmen from Registrar of Voters offices in both counties. But most nominees file financial statements in the same county they filed nomination petitions, the officials said.

A second filing deadline is set for Aug. 25. A final one requiring a declaration of total expenditures and contributions is due Nov. 10.

There is no limit set for amount of money spent or received, Registrar of Voters office officials said.

Although yesterday was the first filing deadline, late arriving mail postmarked July 28 will be considered a valid filing, officials said.

If no filings arrive by Monday, the respective county Registrars of Voters will notify the prospective candidates by certified mail that their reports are past due.

"They have five days to reply," said Betty McKinney, filing officer for Alameda County.

The same time limit is in effect in Contra Costa County, according to Robert Delevati, registration election supervisor for Contra Costa County.

After that five day limit is up, Alameda County charges a $10 a day fine until the report is filed, McKinney said.

Fuming over backroom politics

"What Tritsch is saying is that some council members are getting together in the back room," Turner told The Times yesterday. "If some council member has a problem with the housing authority, he should bring it to the rest of the council."

Turner indicated he was going to investigate the matter. "I'm incensed over that," he fumed.

Tritsch said he was pleased that the food stamp distribution question had apparently been settled, but was less happy with the issue's political overtones.

"Something smells in this whole deal and I think when the smoke clears, we should look around and see what everyone is doing," he said.

Legislature to seek reform in unfair school financing

(This is the first of two articles on the California Supreme Court's Serrano decision and what it means to young people and all property taxpayers. The articles were prepared by the office of Wilson Riles, state Superintendent of Public Instruction)

Children and taxpayers in California are being cheated by the way our public schools are financed.

That's what the California Supreme Court said last December in ruling on a case known as Serrano versus Priest. And that's why the state legislature has been hard at work since January trying to reform California's school finance system.

The court said many children are being shortchanged because the quality of the schooling they recieve is linked too closely to the value of property in the school district in which they live. If they live in a district with high property wealth per pupil, the chances are they receive better schooling than if they live in what is known as a low property wealth district, the court said.

That's because taxpayers in high property wealth districts can raise more money for schools with a much lower tax rate than can taxpayers in low property wealth districts.

As an example, a $2 tax rate in a district with $50,000 of property wealth behind each pupil yields $1,000 per pupil, while it takes a $4 tax rate to raise the same amount in a district with only $25,000 of property behind each pupil.

A school that spends $3,000 per pupil is far more likely to be able to attract more— and more qualified — personnel and to provide its students with a wider variety of learning options than a school that spends less than $1,000.

The state supreme court said such differences in per pupil spending due to differences in local district property wealth are illegal. The court gave the state legislature until September of 1980 to develop a more equitable means of funding public schools.

Efforts to reform the school finance system, generated by the Serrano decision, are helped dramatically by the availability of state funds due to an estimated $2.5 billion state budget surplus.

What Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. and the legislature decide to do in the upcoming weeks will have a major impact on both taxpayers and children for years to come.

Their decision is also critical because public schooling is California's biggest business.

It involves more children than there are people in 34 states!

California spends an average of $1,595 on each of 4.5 million students from kindergarten through the 12th grade. The cost to taxpayers is over $6.4 billion a year.

The state's 1,042 local school districts employ 364,000 people to manage and operate 7,045 schools, making public schooling the single largest employer in the state.

Legally, the issue raised by Serrano is one of equity, not one of quality (of education).

Even today, California's education system is not spending as much as many people believe, Riles' office contends.

Although California's 21.7 million residents have the 11th highest per capita income in the nation, it ranks only 18th among the states in per capita expenditures on public schooling. And it ranks 17th in actual per-pupil expenditures.

Riles' office believes the requirements of Serrano can be met without dismantling basic elements of the public school system. Despite what they term "widespread misconceptions," the court:

— Did not outlaw property taxes as a means of financing public schools.

— Did not require that all schools spend the same amount of money for the education of each child.

— Did not order the state to assume 100 per cent of all local school costs.

— Did not abolish local control of public schools.

— Did not rule out the possibility that local property tax revenues might still be part of an acceptable school finance system.

The court also recognized that different kinds of children require different kinds of schooling, some of which cost more than others. It said that full state funding is only one of many options available in meeting the court mandate. And a new state school finance program does not require any lessening of state - delegated authority to local citizens, concludes the Serrano backgrounder out of Riles' office.

A new pavillion for livestock exhibitions is the major casualty in the fair's decision not to build

Fair still feeling impact of that '76 county strike

Though the 65th edition of the Alameda County Fair earlier this month proved one of the most successful in history, the bright revenue picture will not be reflected to any substantial degree in the County Fair Association's 5-year construction program.

A strike by County employees in 1976, which resulted in picketing at main gates and a complete shutdown of racing, will have an inhibiting influence on construction at the Fairgrounds for at least another year.

Because of financial losses estimated at close to half a million dollars, County Fair Association directors reevaluated projected capital projects for 1977 and adopted a policy that no capital projects be undertaken this year.

Prime casualty in the five-year construction program has been the proposed Amador livestock pavilion, a project estimated to cost $550,000 and to include parking, landscaping and lighting.

The number one priority in 1976-77, the disastrous '76 fair has caused directors to designate the livestock pavilion as a primary project for the 1978-79 fiscal year.

The state, in its recommendation of a little over a year ago, indicated it was recommending an $80,000 allocation for the 1976-77 period, and $40,000 for the 1977-78 period, with the remaining balance of $430,000 necessary to complete the project still under consideration.

The Fair even went as far as projecting the start of construction on the livestock pavilion when submitting its 1977 budget, putting the $430,000 in the ledger charged to Fair operating funds.

Then came the Bicentennial Disaster of '76!

The Association is now seeking a public works board allocation in the amount or as much of the $430,000 as possible, to be applied in 1978-79 and 1979-80. This would be put with the previous total authorized recommendation of $120,000.

Directors see this project as necessary in order to offer new livestock barns and related facilities to house all livestock exhibits, as well as judging arenas and wash rack facilities. This facility would also contain restroom and shower room facilities for livestock exhibitors and construction plans may also include an area for a fire department. The facility would be constructed in such a manner that it can be utilized year-round for presentation of horse shows, gymkhanas, livestock sales and rodeos.

With the exception of the livestock pavilion, all construction projects for the first two years of the 5-year program are relatively minor.

Significant additions don't appear on the 5-year plan until 1979-80 when $500,000 for new horse barns, $200,000 for covering of the Amphitheatre, and another $200,000 for development of a Bicentennial Plaza are projected.

In the following fiscal year, 1980-81, a $1 million new Hall of Commerce is projected.

The Fair's master plan indicates that for future development, it would be necessary to construct a Hall of Commerce building to house some commercial and special exhibits, such as home arts, mineral and gems, home economics and future exhibits.

This project would necessitate demolishing current facilities which do not meet health and safety codes and/or regulations. It is proposed that the building be a tilt-up type concrete structure of approximately 60,000 square feet.

The state Division of Fairs and Expositions previously recommended a $40,000 allocation each year for the fiscal years of 1975-76 and 1976-77, with the remaining $920,000 under consideration.

But for the coming fiscal year, the projections are relatively minimal.

They include, from first through fourth priority, phase two work on the theatre walk and park area with plans for a fountain, tower and paving of walkways (Estimated cost $65,000); Landscaping, planting of grounds (Estimated cost $75,000); New Gate C, with lighting ($50,000); and complete lighting of parking areas 6, 7 and 9, and lawn area of Area B, barbecue and picnic areas ($65,000).

Projects tabbed for 1978-79, eside the livestock pavilion, include demolition of existing livestock barns, demolition of 4-H building and dormitories, landscaping, planting and lighting former livestock area, a vehicle shelter, and Horsemen's Way.

Jane Sharp (left) and Deanna Scott of the Pleasanton Jaycee Wives look over some of the merchandise to be sold at the organization's garage sale, to be held Saturday and Sunday, July 30 and 31 at 7229 Valley Trail Dr., Pleasanton. Proceeds from the sale will go toward funding future Jaycee community projects. Hours for the event are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

EBMUD cuts grazing due to drought

OAKLAND — Grazing leases of horsemen's associations and stockmen have been renewed with one-third reduction by the East Bay Municipal Utility District's (EBMUD) board of directors.

The three-year leases approved Tuesday by the EBMUD board will allow 10 cattle - grazing leases and four Horsemen's Association community horse pasture leases to continue. The leases pertain to 17,800 acres of pasturage surrounding the district's East Bay reservoirs.

The range usage is expressed in "animal unit months" — or the grass needed to sustain a 1,000 pound cow for a month.

"Because of the drought, the district must take the pressure off the range," said William T. Hartman. He is the new manager of the district's land division. "We have reduced the animal unit months by 32 per cent — that is, from an allotment of 18,352 down to 12,482.

The leases are based on a "range year" which runs from Oct. 1 through Sept. 30 of the following year.

Hartman said the horsemen's associations and cattlemen have the option of feeding hay instead of reducing the actual number of animals. An allowance of three animal unit months is allowed per ton of hay.

Hartman added if weather conditions improve causing an increase in forage, upward adjustments could be possible.

The charge per animal unit month, Hartman said, is $9.15 for cattle; $13.75 for horses. Horses are harder on the range, Hartman explained.

The concept of non-profit community horse pastures, Hartman noted, evolved out of the EBMUD Land Use Master Plan of 1970. The intent was to make provisions for relatively low-cost pasturage for horses belonging to people who probably could not afford the expense of boarding a horse in a stable.

Organized groups, such as Horsemen's Association in Castro Valley, Moraga, Orinda and the "Tri-cities" area have the current leases.

"It is unusual to have convenient horse pasturage available in an urbanized area like ours," Hartman said. "It's important to continue to do what we can."

Hartman added rates for cattle pasturage are set by the appraisal method. This is tied to the selling price of choice feeder steers in the Stockton market during June. The average weight of such steers is from 600 to 700 pounds.

Youth Explo coming to Pleasanton with former rock artist leading

PLEASANTON — A former rock musician from England in the Beatle era has come to Pleasanton to lead "Youth Explo" an informal musical time of Praise and Fellowship every Saturday night at 6:30 p.m., at the New Life Fellowship, 3200 Hopyard Road.

Gordon Campbell, who played the guitar with a group of English musicians near London, announces the Saturday night activity, for young people, ages 12 to 35, will feature music, films, trips, and lots of singing.

As the new Youth Director of the New Life Fellowship, Gordon plans a Vocational Seminar for Youth, August 23-26, with speakers from different professions and vocations giving information for career planning.

Havin been born in Belfast, Ireland, Gordon moved to England at an early age, and grew up in Croydon, outside London. He joined a rock band which specialized in Beatle tunes. He knew 110 Beatle songs at that time.

In 1968 he met the Rev. David Theobald, pastor of New Life Fellowship in Pleasanton, who was at that time on a world evangelistic trip. Rev. Theobald invited Gordon to America.

At age 17, Gordon says, he found the Lord, and within 8 months was in America, attending Western Apostolic Bible College in Stockton, California where he graduated in 1973.

He then went back to Europe and the British Isles for three years of evangelistic work, and became National Young Peoples' President for tthe British Isles, of the United Pentecostal Church. He held this position for two years, and was able to institute a number of youth programs that had not been done before.

1976 brought him back to the U.S. to minister in California, Illinois and Ohio, along with his wife Grace, whom he met in Bible College, and their baby David.

Musically, Gordon went from Rock to Gospel. He composes Folk gospel music, and will start a musical group here in Pleasanton, with guitar, drums, piano and vocal.

He says he's excited about working with the local young people and says the forthcoming "Youth Explo" will be "really fantastic.

Pipe dreams

The "recall movement" in Livermore was misguided and the "referendum campaign" in Pleasanton was unproductive. But the real tragedy is that, for the great majority of residents, neither of those efforts shed any light on "the great pipeline mystery."

Most people, we suspect, still question the wisdom of "an outfall line to the Bay." Some wonder about the cost; others challenge the philosophy. Let's review the alternatives.

This basin has been "suspect" in the matter of waste water discharge almost from that turn - of - the - century period when San Francisco bought large portions of our underground water supply, from Pleasanton to Sunol. Today, other communities still draw from, or through, this basin for their domestic water.

That is why state authority insists this Valley must abide by strict standards in the treatment of our wastes, and in the discharge of our effluent. No one wants that waste water; no one can afford to recapture and reclaim it. There is no plan now available or remotely fundable that suggests such reclamation is possible.

Even the pipeline critics know this. They advance "the philosophy of water reclamation"; but they have no solid ideas, no tested program. And they have no money. But they "guess" that such a plan exists, and they "guess" that funding might be available.

The people elected to represent all of us are not entitled to play guessing games. They have to deal with the facts before them, with the funding now available, leaving their constituents with the smallest possible monthly cost.

This has always been the challenge confronting the Livermore and Pleasanton city councils and the VCSD board of directors. To their credit, they have never shied away from that burden, even when it appeared least popular.

It is left to others to dabble in the fantasy of this or that alternative. The hard fact is, even if such a "water recycling" project were now available to us, our immediate share of that cost would be many times the $3 per month which is the maximum any of us must pay for the plan local and state governments endorse.

Given those facts, we think our elected representatives have acted with courage and with honesty in dealing with a problem that has plagued and penalized this Valley for over 20 years. More people should be telling them just that.

Ambulance needed

Having found the courage to tackle that pipeline controversy, it is a wonder Pleasanton city council couldn't apply that same leadership in resolving the community's need for an ambulance.

The precise location of that vehicle has become a neighborhood issue; the ultimate need is of concern to 33,000 people.

Pleasanton's inability to find a local location for the Tri - Cities Ambulance could jeopardize the service now being provided 100,000 residents in this basin. If the Fremont - based firm cannot show a profit with its East County branch, then the company will most certainly pull out of this area.

The alternative would be for Valley Memorial Hospital to take over all such emergency services, using fulltime union crews. That would be costly, both to VMH and to the local resident; and it would still not resolve the problem of in - town location versus time - consuming runs from one central base to points 10 and 20 miles away from that base.

Before Pleasanton brings us to that poor compromise, the city council should look at ambulances as a vital commodity for the total community, and the entire Valley. That's a pretty heavy veto to hand any one neighborhood.

Home owner woes

KCBS - TV is doing an in - depth report on it. Senator John Holmdahl is in Los Angeles conducting legislative hearings on it. Even President Carter is giving it careful study.

The question seems simple enough: "What makes new homes cost so much?" The answer is just as obvious: "There ain't enough of them to go around."

In the aftermath of the Great Growth Freeze, a great many people are unhappy. We thought they wanted to be saved; turns out they just want someplace to live.

So they bid for the few homes available. Prices are driven up. Speculators and lenders have a field day. Sellers are doing fine too, at least for the moment.

About the only class of citizen you don't hear from these days is the Happy Home Owner. The people who like what they have, want to raise a family there, have no desire to sell, no matter what the price.

But a lot of us are being forced to. Sell. Get out. Can't handle the taxes, stacked onto the payments, added to the second mortgage, then the new furnace, the plumbing that just went out.

For some, home ownership is more than a quick business venture. It's a lifetime experience. The end of the search, for the right neighborhood, in the good town, among great people. We just want them to go away ... the buyers and the speculators, the assessors and the tax collectors, those politicians who would rip us off and those others who would save us.

And stop playing that tiresome "New Home Buyer's Lament." How about a few lines from that lovely old tune .... Oh give me a home where real people still roam, Where three kids and two parents might play, Where seldom is heard that discouraging word 'How much can we sell it for today?'

FOCUS/Kidnap case

Enviroments

The "guilty" pleas of the Schoenfeld brothers and Frederick Woods in the Chowchilla kidnapping case brought out some lesser, but still quite interesting revelations.

Apparently the 25-year old Woods, whose father runs a quarry here, was strongly influenced to carry out the crime by the potential for creating a television drama storyline.

In fact, James Schoenfeld was quoted as saying the abduction had originated as a hypothetical movie plot in conversations between Woods and an unidentified friend who was a Hollywood script writer.

Woods is alleged to have written a letter offering the screen writer rights to the story.

"I think it would make a damn good movie of the week if not a feature," Woods is alleged to have written.

Incredible!

To think that the lives of a couple of dozen young children and their driver were initially the pawns in a bid to sell a storyline to a Hollywood screen writer.

Further shocking the sensibilities is the allegation that Woods insisted on putting greater weight on the hatch that led from the childrens' subterranean tomb (in the Livermore quarry) to the surface.

Through Ed Ray's (the bus driver) own comments, there is evidence that such an action would have made it impossible for Ray and the children to escape.

Fortunately, they did. But the physical and mental scars of this bizarre episode live on with some of the youngsters.

This state has long been known for the incidence of bizarre and horrifying events.

Beside the Manson episodes, the Santa Cruz murders and the Juan Corona case in Marysville-Yuba City, there has been a steady succession of shocking crimes, offtimes perpetrated by persons easily influenced by the sensationalism of electronic and print media.

When you dig a little deeper, you realize it all goes back to how the child is brought up, what values he is imbued with in his home and school environments.

If the "examples" are negative, the child must have the strength to overcome his environment.

And it would seem such occurrences are infrequent.

More often than not, the child flows with the tide of society, bouncing from the rocks of adversity to the shore of success — only to drift away again when another crisis appears.

It is the home environment that is most important, followed by the influences of the child's peer group and school. If all are negative or serve only to reinforce what society considers bad habits, then there will continue to be the Chowchillas, Manson gangs, and mass murders.

Letters to the Times

Sex perversion

Editor, The Times:

In reading Neil Heilpern's article on Gay Rights (Times, July 20), I find I have objections ... Neil doesn't seem to recognize that the very concept of civil rights is a moral one. Sex perversion in any form is a direct assault on the very concepts of morality that make all of our rights possible. Clearly there can be no civil right to propagate sex perversion.

One of the basic axioms of our culture is that one man's rights end where the next man's nose begins. Gays attempt to push the idea that their perversions are a private matter affecting no one else.

Government cannot be separated from questions of morality. The principle issues behind Watergate and Viet Nam were moral. The idea that one should not speak out or take organized action for fear of exciting extremists is absurd. If we allow the fear of exciting crackpots to dictate our actions, society will become powerless to act on any issue, for extremists can be found on any subject. I agree that violent persecution of homosexuals by misguided individuals is tragic, but it is highly unfair to blame that on people who speak out. ...

Neil raised the question of life style influence. The assumption that children will not be influenced by homosexual teachers if their early training was good is like the view that it doesn't matter how much pornography or sadistic violence is viewed as long as one's early training was docile. ... One of the most disgusting practices of our day is labelling smut as adult material, when it is actually a serious poison threatening the very social order we live in,

I must close with a disclaimer. Letters to the editor require brevity and directness that is often interpreted as hatred. None is intended.

Retarded people

To The Times —

Dear Mr. Heilpern:

I was very moved by your telling of the tragedy of George Bergmunch and his sister. Retarded people are not easy to write about but I thought your reporting of details — his fear of being punished, his endurance of bare-footed pain, his distaste for water, the taunts of the children — gave a dignity to his actions.

That he loved and was loved was only too clear in the mention of his sister calling to him from the loud speaker on a fire truck.

I thought you did a sensitive job, and I thank you.

Camp Parks staff

Editor, The Times:

On page 1 of the Tims, TuesayT July 26 appeared an article concerning Camp Parks. In that article was the statement "there are only two full-time military personnel at the base". That statement is incorrect.

At Camp Parks, in addition to the personnel mentioned in the Times article, are myself and four other full-time, active duty Army Officers. We are advisors to the 91st US Army Maneuver Training Command, an Army Reserve unit based at Camp Parks.

This letter is intended only to correct a mistatement of fact — not to denigrate the fine job done by LTC Corral and his people in keeping Camp Parks operating.

Abandoned baby

Editor, The Times:

In regards to the very juvenile girl who gave birth, it's understand able that no charges will be pressed, being a baby herself, but two questions remain to be answered; Who aided in the birth? I'm sure the girl could not have given birth by herself, and the parents, who knew the girl was very pregnant, then all of a sudden became unpregnant.

Criminal charges should be brought against these people, if they neglected to report this to the authorities. The baby could have been mutilated by dogs.

Thank God, that baby was found in time.

Home Alert

Open letter to Sgt. Don Lee —

I would like to thank Sgt. Don Lee of the Livermore Police Dept. for coming to talk to our neighborhood about Home Alert last week. He showed a movie on burglary and discussed how we could make our homes safer. After 3 attempted burglaries in our neighborhood which were interrupted by concerned neighbors, the Home Alert meeting proved very helpful to us. Many of us are now busy engraving our valuables, securing our windows and patio doors so they can't be lifted out, installing deadlocks on our doors, etc. Anyone who would like to have a Home Alert meeting for their neighborhood can call the Police Dept. for an appointment. The Police Dept. has other movies available to show such as Rape, Bunko, Child Molesting, etc.

Editor, The Times:

Congratulations to the Valley Times, the Independent and the TriValley Herald.

During the last five months the Livermore Jaycee Van Project (alias Supermarket Sweepstakes) has received: numerous articles, excellent pictures, feature stories, headline coverage.

We believe that the success of this project was greatly enhanced because of the extensive coverage by these newspapers. My wife and I, the Jaycees, and the Senior Citizens thank you. We are looking forward to continued excellent relations with each of you.

Holdener's sign

Editor, The Times:

There are many people in this town who are perturbed at the way the City of Livermore is giving the Holdeners the old Hong Kong shuffle. Their efforts to re - arrange their sign to bring it into public view seems reasonable...

Many circumstances have changed since the Holdeners have been at that location. Such as more large conglomerate stores moving in closer to them; and the access to them being made convenient, with the help of the city. The four lane of traffic are zipping by much faster now... Why deprive such a decent, honest, long standing local business family of their little piece of progress?

Valley Memorial Hospital's sign used to be parallel; it has been changed to perpendicular, rectifying a problem of public view. The savings and loan business, next to Holdeners, has a perpendicular sign, flashing away more than ever now. That's alright too. But it is not alright to calculate that the Holdeners' sign would be a blemish or a blight on Stanley blvd., or this city.

I would like...the city council to take another look at this case. The Holdeners are not fly-by-night operators, out for a fast buck. They are straight, hard - working people.

round the town

Darling I am growing old,
Silver threads among the gold ...

I am also growing tired of those corporate and political types who line their pockets with gold at the expense of our silver - haired friends.

Now the electronic media is heavy into the seniors. The other day CBS - TV gave us "The Retirement Revolution." 60 minutes. Well sponsored. Not much message; but loads of profit.

Ever notice those commercials and newspaper ads for savings and loan associations? Always have some nice old gent as the commentator, or they use a 93 - year - old wonder as their model customer. Probably paid him off with a package of the - gum - that - doesn't - stickto - your - dentures.

The business world has discovered there is profit in senility. Henceforth the senile may never again know any peace. This is a marked change from society's view of funny - old - people, a few decades ago.

"Retirement" was not a word you heard much, back in those dust bowl days. Oh, we had a few "idle rich" and for the rest there was always "the poor house." But nothing much in between.

"Retire" was something people over 40 did at day's end. But they always bounced back next morning. ("I think I'll retire for the evening," Dadeeo says, yawning mightily. Mother would join him, shortly thereafter.)

Some politicians build their career over "the plight of our older citizens." Once elected, the candidate is hard pressed to keep his supporters alive from one election to the next. With every funeral, he's losing a sure vote.

Social Security is going broke. That's what some Washington doomsdayers are telling us. Republicans, mostly. They've been predicting the demise of this nation's social benefits every since FDR created the first soup lines. "They're running out of soup, they're running out of soup," the GOP activist would cry, running up and down the line. Shook hell out of the Dust Bowl Generation, I'll tell ya.)

Another branch of government advises that we are living longer, growing older. In another 50 years, more of us will be doing nothing than those of us doing something. That should scare hell out of everybody under 40.

"Today there are 23 million Americans over 65. By the year 2000, there will be 31 million over age 65." I don't know if that's good or bad. Ask the Savings & Loan Association. They know.

Few years back the nation was captivated by the football antics of one George Blanda. "How can old George keep it up?" fans would ask, season after season. Made it sound like some sort of miracle the guy could walk out onto the field, still make it to the bank with his paycheck.

I'm some years older than Old George and I'm still a long way from a pension. NFL or SocSec.

"Few years back the wife and I figured we had the kids raised, the house paid for, and with $10,000 a year income assured from investments and stuff, we were ready to retire," fella was saying just the other day. "Now we're faced with having to sell the house, I'm looking for a job, and my accountant says it will be five years before I can be sure of the $15,000 annual income needed to retire, by which time it will take $20,000, just to meet our 1960 lifestyle."

He may never get there. First off, 1960 was a very good year, lifestyle wise. I remember it well.

Young folks are always applauding their oldsters. Showing great admiration for grandma and gramps. Down deep, young folks really wish everybody over 60 would move on, go to their reward. Holding up progress, jamming the job market, bankrupting Social Security.

"If the United States maintains the Volunteer Army at its present rate, by the year 2000 all of the armed forces' budget will be needed just to support retired members of those forces."

The Russians know that. They don't figure on invading us, or atomizing us. Just wait us out. Bunch of doddering old fools living off the army pension plan. The Ruskies will knock us over with one good whiff of the salts.

Nissim Malabel may be the answer —

Nissim is a student at Cal State University in Los Angeles. Doing very well.

"I'm not bothered by girls. Not attracted to gambling or smoking or drinking," Nissim reports. He just sticks to the books. Six hours every day, after classes. Nissim Malabel has a great future.

Except that Nissen Malabel already has 84 years behind him. No telling how many still to go. Other students are making book on whether old Nissim lives long enough to grab his sheepskin. If he does, they'll celebrate all the way to the cemetery.

CBS should interview him. Reader's Digest will do a condensation on his life. Then what? Anybody got a job for an 84 - year - old college grad with a French major? Let him do commercials . for the Savings et Loan Association de Paris. Now if only we can figure what to do with George Blanda, and me.

SANDLERING vs FOX SWALLOW

Challenge match

The Sanderling Sluggers are a bunch of chickens!

So say the kids on Fox Swallow Circle.

Seems Fox Swallow, situated near Valley and Greenwood in Pleasanton, took up the challenge publicized by Sanderling that they would take on any other block in a game of baseball. Main requirement, as stated in a Times article last week, was that the teams be co-ed and between the ages of 7 and 16.

The Sluggers call Woodthrush Park their home base. Last word from Sanderling was that they'd had a scrimmage with Skimmer Court, but no report on the outcome— if there was, in fact, an outcome.

In questioning the veracity, not to mention the baseball ability of the kids residing on Sanderling, the Birds (Admittedly an arbitrary designation for Fox Swallow), Candy Hobbs said all the Sluggers had to do was pick up the phone and dial her at 846-1892.

Presumably this would lead to scheduling of a "showdown".

Inexperienced as the writer is in playing messenger boy, we can only hope that this accepting of the challenge by the Birds doesn't go unfulfilled.

Which is not to say that there aren't more healthier pursuits than two blocks settling something with baseball bats and balls.

As soon as we hear if Sanderling and Fox Swallow are going to do battle, we'll pass the word along.

Kids of Sanderling, the Birds await your call!

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I just don't understand why my three children all have so many unreasonable fears. There's nothing unusual about our family and yet I wonder if they will be neurotic when they grow up. My husband is a military man and is quite embarrassed by the children's displays of fear. He feels a combination of shame and anger and, as a result, is often very harsh with them. — L.A.

DEAR L.A.: A study by the Foundation for Child Development revealed that in our child - oriented society many children are beset by a wide variety of fears: fear of strangers, of something unexpected happening, fear of violent TV programs and fear of their fathers.

Despite their fears, most of the children were found to be content with their families and themselves. Researchers found that among 7- to 11 - year - olds, fear and TV go together. Almost a fourth of the children said they feared programs where "people fight and shoot guns." Those who watched four or more hours a week were twice as likely to feel "scared" as those who spent less time with TV.

University of Detroit psychologists found that normal children actually had more fears than disturbed children, although the disturbed youngsters experienced their fears more often.

Your husband's attitude isn't helping your children overcome their fears and it's quite likely that it may be increasing them. Some fear is normal and, indeed, an indication of health. If humans had no fears, we wouldn't exist today. Fears can serve to protect.

Make it clear to your children that fear is normal and that it's important for them to express and talk openly about their feelings. When fears are kept secret, they tend to multiply and intensify. Shared anxieties are less frightening and by taking them out, they're more apt to be overcome.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've had notoriously bad luck with three marriages but I never seem to give up. I'm now entering on the fourth round with another woman I love very much. I say "another" because I did love the others when I married them. One of my closest friends tells me to forget about marriage altogether, that it's never going to work and that marriage as an institution is, and should be, dead. I'm old -fashioned and still cling to the notion that this time will be the magic one. Is this naive for a 40 - year - old? — M.M.

DEAR M.M.: I'm just a trifle disturbed by the word "magic." To me, this indicates that you may still have romantic and unrealistic expectations about marriage, which may be one of the reasons you've had problems.

Even though an individual has had marital failures, there is always a chance for success if the person has matured and learned from the past failures.

Sociologist Norval Glenn and Charles Weaver feel that stability is the wrong yardstick for marital success. Flexibility might be a far better way to measure the viability of the institution of marriage.

Remarriage usually brings a completely new set of problems. There frequently are step - children, financial and emotional obligations to more than one family, in addition to the standard possibilities for incompatibility. These problems, however, can be offset by a greater maturity and more realistic expectations.

Don't pay too much attention to your friend. He may be expressing his own problems with marriage. He may have some ambivalent feelings about your situation he's not aware of. He may wish that he'd done as you're doing, or he may regret that he has acted in a similar manner. In either case, I'd guess that he's projecting his own problems onto your marriage and actually, they have little to do with you.

The spicy cinnamon for cinnamon toast and apple pie comes from the ground-up bark of the cinnamon tree, which grows in such warm lands as the West Indies and SriLanka.

To harvest cinnamon, the lower branches are cut down and the thin, smooth bark is carefully peeled off and then dried in the sun. As the bark dries, it curls up and turns light brown.

The flavor we enjoy in cinnamon comes from a fragrant oil found in the bark. Cinnamon oil is used in flavoring toothpaste and candy.

All spices come from plants, but they do not come from the same part of a plant. Pepper to season food comes from the crushed, dried berries of the pepper plant. Nutmeg and mace both come from the large, peach-like fruit of the nutmeg tree. Cloves are the dried flower buds of the clove tree. And the ginger in gingerbread comes from the dried-up roots of the ginger plant.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter, 39, and mother of three children developed Cushing's syndrome. She grew facial hair, developed a moon face, heavy body fat, dry flaky skin. She recently had surgery and the doctors removed both of her adrenal glands. I am told she will have to take cortisone orally.

Will the symptoms of facial hair, moon face and obesity disappear? We were told by her doctors that without surgery she would have lived one year. What causes this problem?

DEAR READER — The picture you have described is caused by an over production of hormones from the adrenal cortex, the outer shell of the adrenal gland that produces cortisone.

Surgery is commonly used in treatment of such patients. If both adrenal glands are removed entirely the patient does have to take cortisone the rest of his or her life. It is replacement therapy since the normal source of cortisone has been removed.

The obesity should reverse itself and the fat pads over the upper face that cause the moon face appearance should disappear, as well as the excess hair growth and other signs of Cushing's syndrome.

Opening lead — 3♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Some players use the second-best lead from a long suit that doesn't have as good as the jack at the head of it against all contracts.

If West had been playing this convention, his lead of the three of hearts would have insured the slam for South who could have just played the six of hearts from dummy at trick one. It wouldn't matter which high heart West held. If it were the king East would take his jack, but South would have a sure finesse against the king later on and would get to discard one of his clubs.

They weren't playing this convention and South decided to try dummy's queen. East took his king and returned the suit.

South still had a two-way guess for the queen of clubs to make his contract, but fine discarding by East and West led to his losing two more tricks.

South drew trumps, cashed the high diamonds and ran the rest of his trumps. West's last four cards were the nine of hearts and three clubs; East's the seven of hearts and three clubs.

West unguarded the queen of clubs on the last trump while East chucked his heart. So South led a club to the king, finessed against East and lost the last two tricks to the queen of clubs and nine of hearts.

Two sisters fight for their Danville land

DANVILLE — The feisty Weber sisters of Danville, threatened with the loss of their ranch because of a proposed flood control project, took their fight earlier this week to the County Planning Commission.

The project, 72-year-old Thelma Weber told the commission, would take a third of their 15-acre ranch and could spell disaster for wells in the area.

Weber read her remarks from a letter during the commission's first public hearing on the environmental impact report concerning the proposed flood control plan for the San Ramon watershed.

The plan calls for construction of detention basins and channel improvements to prevent massive flood damage along Green Valley, Sycamore and San Ramon Creeks in the event of a 100-year flood.

The commission will consider findings on the impact report and on the flood plan itself Aug 16. Both proposals then go to the board of supervisors.

And if the Weber sisters have their way, their property should be out of the plan entirely.

Thelma Weber charged that the EIR contained "a large number of important omissions" which should warrant the "complete exclusion of Lower Green Valley Creek Basin" from the report.

The Weber sisters, who have lived on their Skyview horse ranch for 25 years, have vowed to prevent the county from taking one-third of their 15-acre property earmarked by the flood control district as a potential detention pond for the Green Valley area.

An investment development company is also fighting to save its 15-acre parcel on Diablo's Blackhawk Road from being turned into a basin.

During the hearing, engineer Gene De Bolt, representingDiablo Investment Co., presented a study made for the firm by a private hydrologist, which he said, outlined alternative sites.

However, Weber countered in her testimony that the report failed to note the five "excellent wells" located "smack dab" in the middle of the proposed basin which would be destroyed by digging them out.

One well, she said, produces 30 gallons of water per minute while another has been operating "day and night" for 23 years.

These five wells she said, are the same ones "which prior to 1931 helped furnish all the water needed for the Diablo Hotel and Diablo Country Club."

She contends that building the pond would lower the area's high water table and drain water from the nearly 100 wells within a half-mile radius of the pond site. This in turn, would kill the trees near the creek that depend on the water, she said.

She added that flood control's promise to pay for the loss of riparian rights (animal and plant life along the creek's banks) was useless. "Money," she said, "cannot replace the refreshing quiet beauty of a tree, or the stillness of a flowing creek in your back yard."

Budget strains feelings

MARTINEZ — -An accusation that the Board of Supervisors was railroading fire and special district budgets Tuesday may have cost a taxpayers group some good will.

Chairman Warren Boggess commented after the session that the board has always had a good working relationship with the County Taxpayers Association. But he warned accusations such as the ones made earlier Tuesday could hinder that relationship.

The charge grew out of discussion of the association's suggestion to trim fire and special district budget reserves by $900,000.

Boggess told taxpayer representatives James Cawdrey and Richard Radford that it was too late in this year's budget process to adopt the suggestion.

Radford charged the board with rushing the fire budget through on "the 3:25 express."

Boggess replied, "I don't feel I'm on any 3:25 express." Cawdrey interjec ed, "I AM."

The association proposed establishing a $100,000 contingency fund for the fire districts to draw on instead of approving a separate fund for each district whose aggregate reserve is $377,000.

A similar proposal was made for the special districts whose aggregate reserves are proposed for $530,000.

When Boggess said it was too late, but that the board would be happy to consider the suggestion next year, protested.

"We are upset to be expected to have the final hearing on the fire budgets the same day they are submitted," he added.

Cawdrey and Radford referred to Tuesday's hearing as thf the first hearing on the budgets.

Boggess reminded them that the hearing had been continued from the previous week to accomodate all those who wanted to speak on the budgets.

He had the clerk read the date the hearing was first publicized, last May 12.

Free clinic in SR

SAN RAMON — A Contra Costa County Health Immunization Clinic will be held free of charge at the Family Medical Center, 9260 Alcosta Blvd., San Ramon Aug. 4 from 3 to 6 p.m.

Immunization against polio, diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), tetanus (lockjaw), and measles will be offered.

Rubella (German measles) vaccine will also be available for ages one to 12.

Females over age 12 should consult their usual source of medical care for their personal need for Rubella vaccine. Smallpox vaccination, though no longer routinely recommended, is also available for those who need it for special circumstances.

Children 13 years of age and under must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. An adult bringing a child other than his own must present a written consent signed by the child's parent or guardian. Those persons 14 to 17 years of age may either be accompanied by a parent or guardian or may bring a written consent.

The Health Department believes that immunizations are best secured from one's own physician who is familiar with the patient's health status and who keeps permanent records of all services. The Health Department does not keep records of each individual's immunizations and recommends that these be carefully kept by the person or family.

For further information, call the Health Department office in Concord, 671-4260.

Who can afford a new helmet?

On Sports

Inflation has hit all high school sports but none have been effected more than football.

In fact, the cost of uniforms has gone up so much in some areas there is talk of eliminating football and replacing it with soccer in the fall instead.

Some of the districts in Southern California are now paying $60-75 for football helmets alone and several observers feel they they will eventually cost $250-300 apiece.

Ron Berg

Well it hasn't reached that stage yet in the East Bay Athletic League and some of the leagues' coaches think it will never reach that level.

The costs of most football helmets in the EBAL are less than half the price of some of those in the Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

"We paid about $30 for our helmets this season," said Livermore High School varsity coach Ron Berg. "I just can't see football helmets rising to that high a price."

Dublin High School coach Wayne Re feels the same way.

"Heck, if football helmets ever reached the $200 level we'd probably have to drop football in this area," he frankly admitted. "In fact, a lot of colleges would probably have to drop the sport too.

"We paid $32 per helmet this year and the entire cost of an individual uniform is about $150-175 right now," he went on. "When I first started coaching in 1968 helmets cost around $21 but the past two seasons it's been about the same for us."

Dublin bought its helmets this season from a different company than last year and the cost was about the same.

One of the main reasons for the increase in the price of football uniforms and helmets, in particular, is the increasing unwillingness of insurance companies to insure athletic coverage.

Earlier this summer the San Ramon Unified School District, which includes California, San Ramon and Monte Vista high schools, was having problems finding a insurance company willing to write athletic coverage.

The entire sports program at the three high school was in danger of being eliminated before the problem was worked out.

An increase in the number of suits as a result of football injuries has been the primary reason for the reluctance of insurance companies to cover athletics.

As a result the prices of uniforms in some areas have skyrocketed.

"What will probably eventually happen is that companies will have to make a helmet that is guaranteed to prevent major injuries," Re said. "In that way the cost of football uniforms and helmets should stay at a stable level."

The EBAL is also better off than most districts in that most of the schools in the loop have outstanding booster programs which raise a lot of money for athletic equipment and facilities.

Some of the districts in the larger cities lack the community support that exists in the EBAL and they could be in serious trouble should the cost of uniforms and high school sports in general continue to rise.

So, unless there is a serious rise in the number of law suits over football injuries in the future EBAL football teams should be able to compete without excessive uniform costs.

If the costs of uniforms do start to rise at a steep level, however, the prices of uniforms could blow sky-high.

Just imagine a high school football team having to pay something like $500 per helmet and over $1,500 for a complete uniform.

My gosh, it could even spread to the pros. In 1980 the Raiders and 49ers could be spending as much for a uniform as a new car costs now.

And who said pro football wasn't big business.

Hayward tops Dons for title

Hayward held off a Pleasanton second-half comeback to defeat the Dons, 39-35, for the Pleasanton Recreation Allied Brokers Summer Basketball League crown last night at Amador Valley High School.

Fremont rolled over Dublin, 66-36, for the third-place championship and Livermore toppled Pleasanton/Foothill, 48-34, for the consolation crown.

Rick Howard led Pleasanton with 11 points. Tony Beville led Hayward with ten markers. Jeff Kinman added eight. The Mariners hurt Pleasanton with several key steals in the last five minutes.

Fremont came out fired-up against the Gaels, grabbing a 17-11 first quarter edge and never trailing in the contest.

The Huskies increased their lead to 27-17 in the second quarter before Derrick Woolridge and Dane Seropian each fired in a bucket to close the gap to 27-21 with a minute left in the half.

However, Fremont broke the game wide open in the third quarter, outscoring the Gaels 21-8. Jeff Booher sparked the Huskies in the period, swishing the nets for six points on three field goals.

The Huskies turned the game into a rout in the final quarter with the help of several questionable foul calls and three technical fouls. Dublin drew 25 fouls to only 14 for the Huskies.

Booher led a balnaced Fremont attack with ten points. Marty Mills added eight on four field goals and Tim Henning added seven. Rene Ruiz paced Dublin's scoring with 11 points and was a stellar playmaker for the Gaels. Jeff Barnes and Dan Pearson each added six points.

John Farfan had 14 points to lead the Cowboys to their victory over Pleasanton/Foothill. Bob Bolen added ten and Mike May collected nine.

Steve Nichell had ten for the losers. Rick Rosenbach and Mike Buckley each added eight points for the Falcons.

The game was virtually even in the first half, with Livermore holding a lsight 20-16 advantage.

The turning point in the game came after Rosenbach hit with a jumper to cut the margin to 23-22 with a minute gone in the second half.

Livermore then outscored the Falcons 13-2 the rest of the third quarter. Farfan and Bolen each scored four markers in the period, as the Cowboys took a 36-24 third period edge.

Another Rosenbach jumper with 6:45 left in the final period cut the margin to 36-26 but a three-point play by Jim Rogers put the game out of reach for Pleasanton/Foothill.

Livermore forced the Falcons into several turnovers. Farfan ahd two steals in addition to some brilliant passing.

Walters keys big win, 5-2

NEWARK — Larry Walters can safely assume he played one of the best games of his life here last night in the Big League Sectional Playoffs at Memorial High School.

Walters clubbed a three-run homer and killed a District 57 National rally by throwing a runner out at the plate as the District 57 Americans beat the Senior Circuit, 5-2, to stay alive in the playoffs.

The Americans now face undefeated Central Coast tomorrow afternoon at 1:00, needing to beat them twice for a trip to the Divisional playoffs in Sacramento next week.

Bret Cary went the distance for the Americans in a gutty performance, allowing six hits, walking two batters and striking out four, three of them looking.

Mark Silva laced a leadoff triple to left-centerfield but had to wait for two outs before cleanup hitter Steve Jayko plated him with a base hit to center.

The Americans went ahead for good in the fourth, scoring four runs. Singles by Jayko and Chuck Cary with one out began the rally. Eric Austad fanned for the second out, but John Peters provided the big hit with a bloop single to left field which scored Jayko.

Walters then whacked a hanging curve ball served up by losing hurler Bob Luna over the left-field fence, 350 feet away, to give them a 5-1 advantage.

The Nationals loaded the bases with none out in the sixth but only got one run out if it, that on a sacrifice fly by Ray Francisco.

A's revive, top Angels

OAKLAND — The California Angels lost two second basemen within four innings and, ultimately, a 6-4 decision to the Oakland A's before a crowd of 6068 persons at the Coliseum last night.

Jerry Remy left the game after the fourth inning with a pulled right hamstring and when Wayne Gross stole second for the A's in the seventh inning, Remy replacement, Mario Guerrero, followed. Guerrero suffered a sprain of the right ankle when Gross crashed into him.

Both injuries were described as "slight" but with seven digit free agents Bobby Grich and Joe Rudi already on the shelf the Angels can ill afford any further ailments.

Mitchell Page, who has never been thrown out stealing in the major leagues, tied the American League record for successfull steals in succession, with his 25th in the third inning. Don Baylor, now with the Angels, set the mark during the A's record setting year of thievery last season.

Again, Oakland got a strong pitching performance for supposedly washed up Joe Coleman.

Coleman threw three no-hit innings and didn't walk a batter till the sixth as he upped his record to 2-1.

When Coleman was touched for a single and a walk to leadoff that inning, Dave Giusti came in to relieve and immediatly yielded a single to Bobby Bonds and Tony Solaita's eighth homerun of the year. But after that Giusti was nearly flawless in recording his fifth save. He gave up just two singles.

While all the Angels scoring came in the sixth the A's, with Paige driving in three, pecked away for a run in each of the first three innings and tallied three times in the fourth to take an insurmountable lead.

Livermore BR squad falls, 14-11

SONOMA — Livermore's 15-year old Babe Ruth team faces a must-win situation tonight when it faces the winner of the Elk Grove-Santa Rosa game in the North State Tournament playoffs at 7 p.m. here.

Thevalley squad dropped a wild 14-11 decision to Vallejo in the semi-finals Wednesday night.

Livermore trailed 14-5 going into the bottom of the seventh but scored six times to get back into the contest.

Terry Jacob had the key hit, a triple, which scored three runs. Livermore had stayed alive earlier in the inning when the Vallejo second baseman mishandled a grounder with two outs.

The game was held up for 15 minutes after Livermore protested a Vallejo pitching change. Vallejo starting pitcher Kevin Travler came back on the mound and Livermore contended this was in violation of the National Babe Ruth rulebook.

The protest was finally disallowed and Terry Tennyson struck out to end the contest.

Vallejo started the game fast and scored seven times in the first inning, with the help of four Livermore errors.

Livermore came back with four runs of its own in their half of the first. Jacob and Greg Bruce led off with back-to-back singles and Carl Dice walked. Jacob scored on a wild pitch and two straight Vallejo errors allowed two more Livermore runs. Jeff Hoffman's single scored the fourth Livermore run.

Livermore pitcher Jack Trudeau pitched well in the second and third innings but belted for three more runs in the fourth and one more in the fifth.

North Livermore wins title

NEWARK — North Livermore's Bobby Sox All-Star softball took a tight 5-4 nine-inning victory over East Stockton to win the District 56 crown here Wednesday night.

The valley team got tough in the bottom of the ninth to nab the victory.

Kim Dennis started the rally with a one-out single to center field. Leanne Stoddard got on base on a bobbled grounder and both runners advanced one base on a wild pitch.

Robin Kohoutek made the second out of the inning but Laura Cooper hit a ball to first baseman Anette Aldridge who fumbled it and Dennis scored with the winning run.

ALAMO — There is a good possibility former President Gerald Ford will play in the $100,000 Sarah Coventry Open golf tournament scheduled for September at Round Hill Country Club here.

Harlan Geldermann, who owns the successful real estate/golf course complex, has invited Ford to play in the pro-am portion of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tourney.

According to reports, Ford may well play in the tourney as well as the men's tourney at Silverado that same month. A resident of Palm Springs, Ford has played in both the Bing Crosby and Bob Hope tourney's this year as well as the Memphis Open — wherein he scored a hole-in-one.

He has since hit a handful of spectators with errant shots.

Tournament officials are also trying to line up Glen Campbell, Hope and Crosby for inclusion in the field. Greg Morris, of the late Mission Impossible television series, is honorary chairman of the event.

Dates of the tournament are Sept. 22-25 with 100 LPGA players vying for the first prize of $15,000. The pro-am purse amounts to $5000.

Anderson, Livermore k's Dublin

Chuck Anderson struck out eight batters Tuesday evening as Livermore American clipped Dublin Valley, 7-6, in District 57 major all-star play.

Ken Higby doubled twice to knock in three runs for the winners while Randy Green swatted a solo home run, Joe Lamendola cracked a double and Bill Magann and Tom Braun each chased a run across with a singleton.

Allen Blankenship doubled twice to knock in a run and Jeff Simonich plated a pair of tallies with a two-bagger for DV while Vince Bordelon singled one home.

Ron Mueller, who had two rbi, Derik Rooney, Brian Ferrera, George Lucido, Steve Porth and Sidney Dihn all had hits for the winners.

Granada fell out of the single elimination tourney with a 2-1 loss to Mission San Jose.

Both of MSJ's runs came on homers as Todd Haley and Tim McGee both crashed circuit clouts. Ricky Stark added a single for the winners.

Sean McIntosh, Jeff Holder and Chris Delaney had the hits for Granada.

MSJ pitcher Sean Finney fanned 12 Granada batters and his opponent, Mike Lynn walked no one as neither team made a fielding error.

In another game involving valley teams, Greg Scott pitched three no-hit innings for Pleasanton National, striking out five batters, but tired, left the game, and watched his team mates drop a 6-2 decision to Newark American.

All of the winners' runs — most unearned — came in the last of the fourth. Patty Schott and John Rober had the winners twohits.

For Pleasanton National, Jeff Arnott went 3-for-4 while Greg Scott, Pat Waters and Jeff Jantzen singled.

Referee's clinic

The Pleasanton Girls Soccer Association will sponsor a California Youth Soccer Association-accredited referees clinic during mid-August.

The course will take five nights with the first four, Aug. 15, 17, 23 and 25 being devoted to instruction and the final session, Aug. 30, will be the test for accreditation of officials. All the sessions will be conducted in Pleasanton's cultural arts building and will begin at 7:30 p.m.

PST places three

Three youthful Pleasanton Swim Team competitors placed at the Ohlone 'A' meet at Ohlone College in Fremont last weekend, with two upping their status to 'AA.'

In the girls 11-12 division, Kim Remmert swam to a sixth place in the 100 breast in a clocking of 1:30.6. ob Jones, in the boys 10 and under 50 back, paddled to a 40.5 and victory. Both Remmert and Jones reeled off 'AA' times.

Barbara Karo, in the 10 and under girls grouping was fifth in the 50 butterfly in 40.5 to complete the list of successful T-birds.

Subaru to enter RV mart

DETROIT — Subaru, now the nation's sixth largest selling import car, will join the "sun and fun" market with an open, four - wheel drive recreational vehicle.

Harvey Lamm, president of Subaru of America, recently revealed his firm's plans to enter another vehicle category in an address at the Automotive News World Congress at the Detroit Plaza Hotel.

The vehicle will be unveiled at a series of press showings later this year.

The Subaru president said SOA developed the new vehicle as an outgrowth of the great popularity of its unique four - wheel drive station wagon.

"There was a definite need to address ourselves to the youth - oriented 'sun and fun' consumer whose lifestyle is one of activity and mobility and whose needs demand a vehicle tailored to his or her personal and practical wants and needs," Lamm said.

"A four - wheel drive station wagon is a bit too rigid, stuffy if you will, too family - geared for the spontaneous carefree nature of this kind of consumer."

He pointed out that "a truck doesn't project specifically enough the image this type of consumer, considering his lifestyle, seeks to project.

"In simple terms a market existed for a vehicle with cargo carrying capacity such as a surfboard or ski equipment. Our market experience has already proven the worth of four - wheel drive with its performance, versatility and safety.

"Maximum fuel efficiencies had to be considered. And all of this to be packaged in a passenger car that on the open highway would still fit in with styling ease."

Lamm's address was entitled "The Japanese Connection: Or, Subaru of America A Different Kind of Marketing Story."

Tracing the history of SOA and the rationale behind its unusual, but exceptionally effective marketing strategy, he emphasized the unique, independent marketing link with manufacturer, Fuji Heavy Industries, Ltd., Of Tokyo, japan.

"SOA, unlike any other auto importer in the United State is not a subsidiary of the manufacturer. Even though Fuji owns 38 per cent, SOA operates autonomously.

We are an independent, American - operated company and we're a Fuji customer charged with the responsibility of selling Subaru product in the continental United States, inclusive of Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Bahamas," Lamm said.

Volkswagen unveils its diesel Rabbit

DETROIT AP — Volkswagen unveiled here this week an experimental diesel Rabbit which the firm says averages 60 miles to the gallon of fuel, meets two tough antipollution standards and protects occupants in 40 mile-per-hour crashes.

The experimental Rabbit, developed under a contract with the U.S. Department of Transportation, is en route to the Environmental Agency's laboratory in nearby Ann Arbor for testing.

DOT paid $45,000 for the car, which VW said actually cost $500,000 to develop.

VW engineers say the vehicle brings together advanced technology for safety, fuel economy, exhaust emission control and performance to demonstrate that it is possible to develop such a vehicle.

But mass producing the vehicle is another matter, according to James W. McLernon, head of VW Manufacturing Corp. of America.

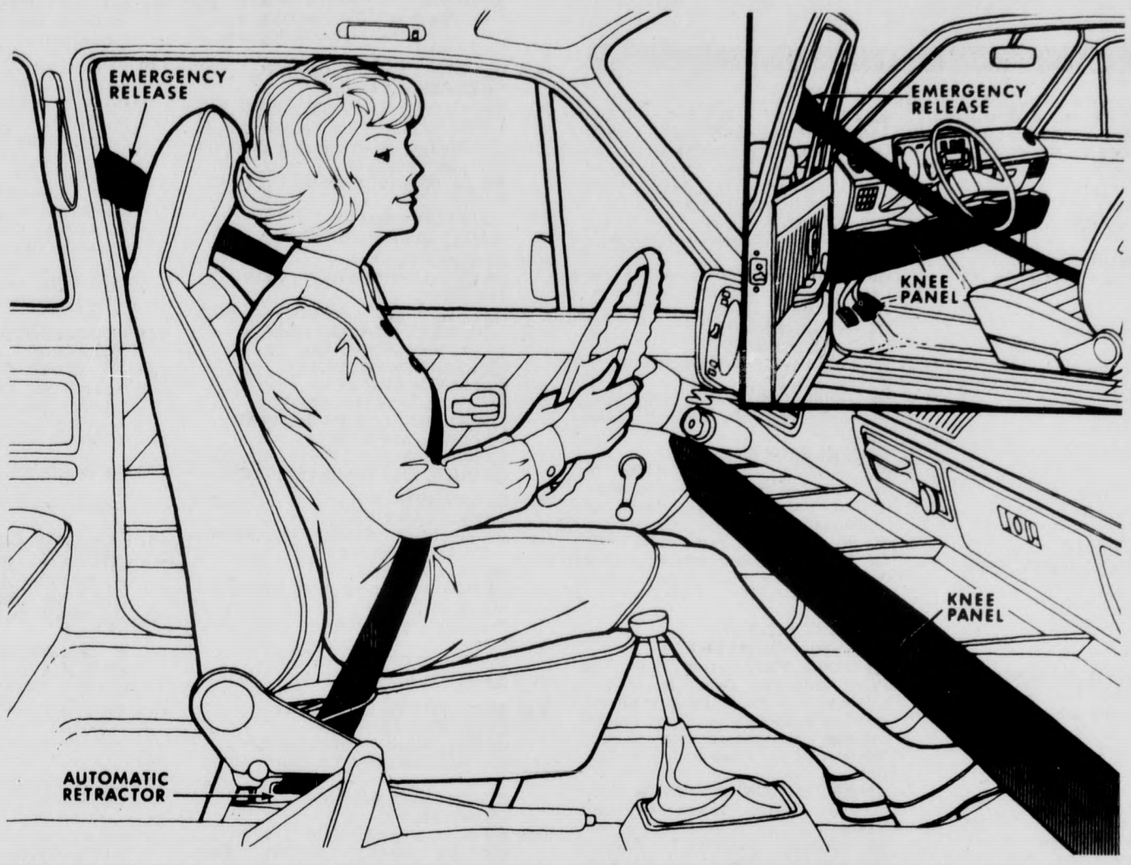
"We have not tackled any of the major problems associated with mass production," said McLernon, whose newly formed company will begin assembling conventional Rabbits in Pennsylvania next year.

McLernon, who refused to speculate on how much a mass-produced version of the car might cost consumers, said it would take at least three years to develop machinery needed to build the car.

More likely, he said, VW will take some of the innovative features of the vehicle and work them into existing models.

The car is powered by a four-cylinder diesel engine and five-speed manual transmission which get 69 m.p.g. on the highway and 55 m.p.g. in the city for an average mileage of 60 m.p.g.

VW engineers say the car gets 80 m.p.g. if driven at a steady 30 miles per hour.



Deluxe versions of the Rabbit hatchback are equipped with an automatic seat belt system that's as simple as opening the door and sliding in.

Some trouble shooting youngsters

Detroit — The uncertainties of the future which plague many high school graduates are no problem for two boys from Eau Gallie High in Melbourne, Florida.

Steven A. Russell, 17, of 1189 Sparkman Street, and James G. Dempsey, 18, of 2305 Floridiane Drive, know what they'll be doing for quite a while.

As the national Plymouth Trouble Shooting champions, they'll fly to Mexico City on July 25 to compete against teams from Canada and Mexico in the second annual International Plymouth Trouble Shooting championship.

In September, they'll enroll in Chrysler Corporation's MoTech Automotive Center at Livonia, Michigan, for a year's intensive study in auto mechanics. And they have been offered jobs by the Palm City Chrysler-Plymouth dealership in Ft. Myers, Florida, when they complete their schooling.

Enrollment in MoTech was one of the rewards of their winning the U.S. Trouble Shooting championship at Atlanta, Ga., on June 21. Steven and James each received a $2,500 scholarship to the school of their choice, and they selected MoTech because they want careers as auto mechanics. The job offer from Palm City Chrysler-Plymouth came along shortly after they returned home from Atlanta.

Their immediate goal is to win the international championship in Mexico City on July 27. It is quite a challenge, because they will have to be engine rebuilders as well as Trouble Shooters. Each of the three teams will be assigned to an identical brand-new Plymouth car. Each engine will be stripped to the block and a total of 340 different parts will be laid out in front of each car. Their job will be to re-assemble the engine ... and then find and fix a series of malfunctions which will be planted in each engine to keep it from starting or running properly.

Last year, when the first international championship was held in New York City, the U.S. team won by re-assembling the engine and then repairing all of its faulty parts in only one hour, 39 minutes, and 30 seconds. They had the car put back together in 57 minutes. Then, it took them 42 minutes and 30 seconds to find and fix the malfunctions.

Steven Russell and James Dempsey are hoping to break that record and keep the international trophy in the U.S.

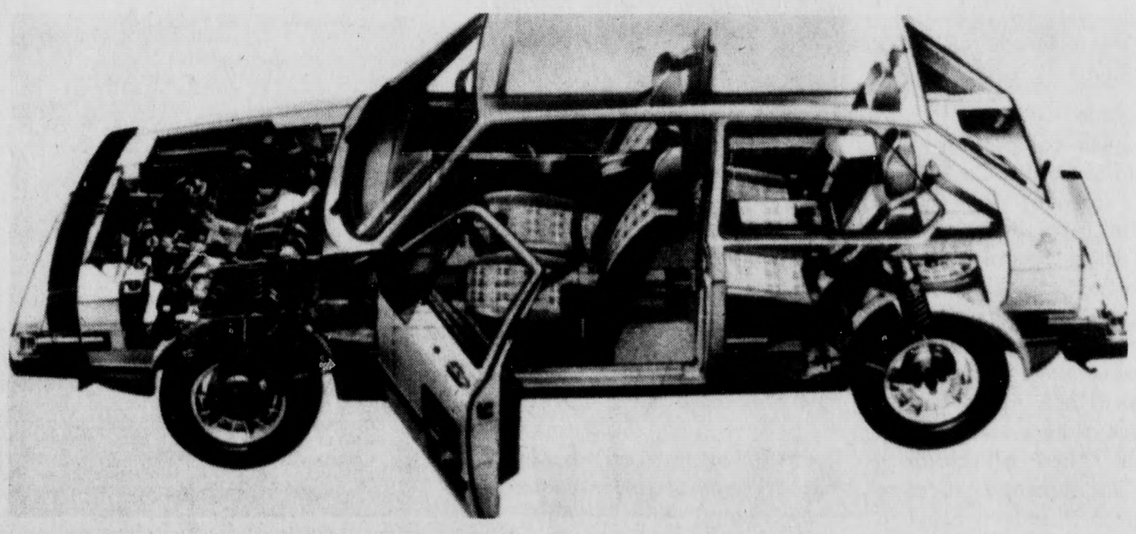
Pat is the featured attraction in the World Series of Thrills and John is the announcer and manager of the show. They are shown here with their two-year-old daughter. Pat pilots her Dodge Warlock pickup around the track in a variety of stunts, like those shown here, and the ramp to ramp jump. All the vehicles used in the show are Dodge Warlock pickups.



A cutaway drawing of Volkswagen's safety Rabbit, developed under contract with the U.S. Department of Transportation, shows special features which give it 60 miles per gallon fuel economy, reduced exhaust emission and a high level of occupancy safety. Outside it resembles a VW Rabbit but under the skin it includes front-and-rear-end energy management systems, a soft nose, a transverse turbo-charged diesel engine and headrests front and rear.

Cars are a better value in these days

DETROIT — Today's American automobile is worth more than its 1962 ancestor, from the standpoint of both adjusted price and technological improvement.

Commenting on a recent study of vehicle design over a 15-year period, Robert D. Lund, Chevrolet general manager and General Motors vice president, believes the automobile has not only maintained, but increased its value compared with its 1962 predecessor. The results of the study seem to dispell the myth that "they don't build 'em the way they used to."

"We think the 1977 full-size Chevrolet, for example, has far greater value than its 1962 counterpart from virtually any standard of comparison including economy, performance, maintenance, ride, handling, durability, quietness, comfort and interior roominess," Lund said.

"To prove this contention, we took the base prices of a 1962 and 1977 Chevrolet Impala sedan and adjusted them according to the standard U.S. Bureau of Labor cost of living scale.

"Adjusting the list price of the 1962 Impala for increases in the Consumer Price Index (all items average) as published by the U.S. Department of Labor, and including adjustments for equipment, safety and emission items, the price level today would approximate $6,000." said Lund.

"This simply means that the Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price of our 1977 Impala at $4,900.65 is nearly $1,100 less then the adjusted price of the 1962 Impala, a definite bargain when considering increases in the cost of living scale since 1962."

Lund noted the recent study showed a price breakdown of the two vehicles as follows.

A 1962 Impala 4-Door Sedan sold for $2,529. A 1977 Impala 4-Door Sedan sold for $4,887. Net increase was $2,358. Detail of Net Increases was Safety and Emissions $537, Added Value-Equipment $546, Economics and other $1,275. A total of $2,358.

The 1977 Chevrolet Caprice and Impala are the first of a new wave of more cost effective vehicles and Lund believes these cars will become increasingly popular "because of dramatically changing social, economic and environmental conditions in the world today."

Besides having an overall roominess index superior to the 1962 Impala, the '77 model shows dimensional advantages in rear head room, front and rear leg and shoulder room. The '77 also has greater total glass area, more usable luggage space, and a lower curb weight.

Lund said the EPA city/highway fueleconomy rating for the '77 is 16 and 21 mpg respectively, while figures simulated by GM for the 1962 Impala are 14.6 and 15.9 mpg. Acceleration at zero-to-sixty mph favors the 1977 Impala with 12.3 seconds to 14.2 seconds for 1962.

Seven complete emission control systems are offered on the '77 Impala: fuel evaporation control, positive closed crankcase ventilation, controlled combustion system, carburetor hot air, early fuel evaporation, exhaust gas recirculation and underfloor catalytic converter. The 1962 Impala offered only the positive crankcase ventilation system.

The study also shows that 1962 recommended service intervals called for vehicle maintenance every 1,000 miles, or 50 times in 50,000 miles. Current vehicle service intervals require visits for maintenance only six or seven times in 50,000 miles.

Lund commented on the marked improvement of automobile engineering and dsign technology, particularly with the debut of the 1977 Chevrolet Caprice, recipient of the Motor Trend "Car-of-the-Year" award.

"The 1977 Caprice and Impala use the most advanced automobile technologies availab'including computer finite element modeling, plastic model stress analysis, ride simulation and aerodynamic wind-tunnel testing.

"As a result, the '77 Caprice and Impala provid greater fuel economy, more interior and trunk space, and significant overall reduction in vehicle mass.

"We feel that the significant improvement in value to our customers over the past 15-year period is typical of the kind of progress our industry has made since 1962," Lund said.

Dublin in Shell survey

Credit card customers of Shell Oil Co. in the Dublin and Pleasant Hill areas are being asked to participate in Shell's newest unleaded gas testing program.

For eight months starting in August two stations will offer a selection of unleaded gasolines to participants who will be asked to evaluate them.

The sample fuels are guaranteed to be at least comparable to gas sold at other stations and participants are partly reimbursed for the test gas they purchase.

Why phone bill will be bigger

A surcharge of one-half of one percent on all California tlephone bills is scheduled to begin in August to finance the "911" emergency telephone system.

The surcharge was authorized by the state legislature to asssit local communities in implementing the "911' program which would allow telephone users to reach fire, police, ambulance and other public emergency services by dialing only three digits. The program is targeted for 1984.

The surcharge will apply to most charges for telephone service except out-of-state long distance calls, according to Pacific Telephone's local manager, Jack Deckert.

Deckert added the surcharge will be included on the bills of customers of Pacific Telephone, General Telephone and the 23 other independent telephone companies in the state.

They'd ring in a blackout

Pacific Telephone has stated its standard system would continue to work in the event of a major power outage this summer.

All phone company central offices and switching centers have auxilliary sources which could provide power to keep the telephone system operating according to Pacific Telephone.

Some large business telephone systems which rely on local power could be affected however. Pacific Telephone has said it would contact these customers to determine the impact of a power outage on their service.

Telephone officials recommend phone subscribers not make unnecessary cl calls the calls if a power outage occurs. A sudden and sharp increase in telephone usage, they say, could overburden central offices and make it impossible for some customers to get a dial tone when trying to place a necessary call.

PLANNING COMMISSION OF THE
CITY OF PLEASANTON
COUNTY OF ALAMEDA
STATE OF CALIFORNIA
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Planning Commission of the City of Pleasanton has set August 10, 1977, at the hour of 7:45 P.M. Wednesday evening, a regular Planning Commission meeting in the Pleasanton Council Chambers, 30 West Angela Street, Pleasanton, California, as the time and place to consider the following matter:

The application of Manuel Delis, Edgren Properties, John Edgren, Jr., and Sr., and Valley Bank to rezone approximately 3.1 acres of land located on the southwest corner of Main Street and Bernal Avenue and including all those properties lying between the City Hall property and Main Street and between Bernal Avenue and the Pleasanton School District office from the 0 (Office) District and the P (Public and Institutional) District to the C-C (Central Commercial) District. The change generally would allow general retail and office uses where the present zoning allows public or institutional uses.

On the basis of an Initial Study of the potential environmental impacts of the project, it has been determined that the proposed project would not have any potential significant adverse effects on the environment and that an environmental impact report need not be prepared. The initial Study and Negative Declaration are available for review at the Planning Department, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California. Comments on this decision must be received at the Planning Department no later than August 2, 1977, in order to be considered by the Planning Commission prior to their decision on the proposed project.

The Planning Commission may approve, modify or deny the application, or recommend to the City Council any action deemed in the public interest.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the hearing shall be held and persons concerned shall be heard by the Planning Commission.

Application of Valley Community Church for a conditional use permit to allow the construction and use of a church facility to be located on a 5.3 acre site located immediately east of the residences located at the eastern end of Del Valle Parkway and Harvest Road and immediately west of the Amador Valley Joint Union High School property. Zoning for the property is P (Public and Institutional) District. Access to the facility would be via the Del Valle Parkway off Hopyard Road. The facility would be built in phases: Phase One includes construction of a 5,762 sq. ft. temporary sanctuary and off-street parking and landscaping (existing buildings would remain); Phase Two includes the construction of a 20,862 sq. ft. of educational and administrative building, the demolition of an existing building, and construction of additional off-site parking; the final phase includes construction of a two-story, 11,080 sq. ft. sanctuary, outdoor auditorium, and additional parking facilities. Development is anticipated to be completed in 10 years.

On the basis of an Initial Study of the potential environmental impacts of the project, it has been determined that the proposed project would not have any potential significant adverse effects on the environment and that an environmental impact report need not be prepared. Are farmers abiding by the rules?

TRANQUILLITY (AP) — "I mortgaged my body and soul, literally."

Larry Turnquist says that's how he became a small farmer in the huge Westlands Water District instead of a management employe of a large farm.

Turnquist told how he's making it to a federal task force investigating complaints that farms continue operating with thousands of acres in Westlands despite requirements that they be split up to be eligible for federal water.

"The first year, I hired no one. It was feasible, but the gray hairs didn't go away," said Turnquist who owns 320 acres with his wife and manages an adjacent 160 acres.

"Today, we're financially solvent and we've been able to make the land payment the last three years, but this year scares the pants off me," Turnquist said.

Because of the drought, he's only had enough water to plant 330 of his 480 acres, all in cotton. That naturally will reduce his total crop and the revenue needed to pay debts that have increased by the cost of rejuvenating an old well.

"Every day I cross my fingers that the well doesn't collapse," Turnquist said.

The task force members toured Westland's 600,000 acres of flat, fertile San Joaquin Valley soil to gather information for hearings in Fresno next Wednesday and Sacramento Thursday.

Westlands farmers who contract for federal San Luis Reservoir water must agree to sell all of their acreage in excess of 160 acres for an individual or 320 for a husband and wife.

Critics, particularly a reform group called National Land for People, charge that the law's intent to put families on farms has been subverted by sales to friends and relatives of the original owners. The divided 160-acre parcels then continue to be farmed in large units.

There is disagreement whether farmers with relatively limited capital and relatively small acreage can make a living in Westlands. Some studies conducted by colleges contend that small farmers can make it, but other academic studies contend they cannot.

Les Stromberg, a University of California farm advisor, told the task force that the area's saline soil makes it impractical to grow trees, the type of specialty farming most common among small growers in other areas of the Central Valleys.

"No one in his right mind would raise a tree crop in a saline area unless it is tolerant like pomegranates," he said.

Stromberg also indicated Westlands has too little irrigation water for fruit trees from San Luis, depleted by drought this year, and from wells, which have caused an overdraft of underground water and sinking of some soil.

"So many wells have been put down, the ground water won't support it all," he said.

However, Berge Bulbulian, president of National Land for People, said his experience of farming 180 acres on the valley's east side "proves a small farmer can make it. It depends on what level you want to make it. I have made a good living."

But Turnquist said he doesn't have enough land and capital to diversify and rotate crops to make his operation more efficient.

Rotating crops would prevent a buildup of fungus in the soil that damages cotton, Turnquist said. Diversifying into several crops each year would spread the risk, Stromberg pointed out.

Jack Woolf, who operates 8,200 acres, said small operators can make it "if they stick to the basic crops and not go into specialty crops."

But Woolf contended the 160- acre limit is too small for an economic unit.

"Personally, I think about 2,000 acres should be a minimum," he said. "You need enough land for proper rotation of crops ... a necessity out here."

The Bureau of Reclamation is preparing drafts of proposed regulation changes and should have them in final form by the end of August, said R. Keith Higginson, the bureau's commissioner.

There has been speculation that any changes would require buyers of excess land to live on or near the property.

The natural cigarette is here!

It is Real

Just taste the difference natural taste makes.

Only low tar Real has nothing artificial added. The other major brands enhance their flavor artificially.

New Real does not.

It doesn't need to. When you light up a Real, the pleasure is all natural. Because Real's flavor is all natural. Nothing artificial added.

We've discovered the way to keep natural taste in, artificial out. Of course the menthol in Real Menthol is fresh, natural. Not synthetic.

Your taste will tell the difference full, natural flavor makes. You get a rich, satisfying smoke. Taste you can feel. So taste Real...smoke natural.

Low tar. Nothing artificial added.
